Subject: [positivepetzine] Loose leash walking - it really is possible! Even with 2 powerful dogs

Hi Kelly, what's the easiest way to maintain safe control of a large, powerful dog? There are a couple of options described in detail in today's article found here.

Today's article also reveals where to find an awesome training plan for loose leash walking, including an interview I did with the Queen of Loose Leash Walking, Sue Ailsby (who, apart from being an incredible dog trainer, relies on rock solid loose leashes from her Service Dogs, past, present and in-training).

One of the biggest challenges I face in bringing this ezine and website to you is finding credible sponsors to support this project. Finding sponsors is easy, finding sponsors who share the same values as this ezine does is much harder. While I don't have any control over what appears on the google ads on my site, I do have control over who gets to advertise directly in this ezine and in the e-courses you may be receiving.

Thankfully, in recent times I have discovered two new sponsors:

- The Amazing Dog Training Man, who not only has a range of sensible, easy to follow dog training programs that use only positive methods (including clicker training) but his site is chock-a-block full of free videos, tips and articles. I'm going to be taking a leaf from his book and posting video on my site just as soon as I can figure out how!
- The Hands Off Dog Training System, which is Chet Womach's program for completely "hands off" training, also using clicker training. Right now, Chet is offering $147.98 in free bonuses with his course (including the "Super Potty Training Guide"), so it's worth checking out.

If you've bought any of these products I'd love to hear from you, I welcome all feedback (positive or negative) so I know what's hot and what's not hot about the companies and people who sponsor Positive Petzine. You can write a book review here.

Until next time...

Regards,
Aidan
